We are Vocational Legal Experts

Referral for human factors forensic services nets the assignment of a Certified Professional Ergonomist (CPE), who has been involved with ergonomics since 1992. Uniquely, our CPE, and senior partner, has the added experience of specialized master level education and experience in Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) accommodation issues, disability and injury management, and worker compensation. This combined level of expertise provides the foundation that is needed to effectively address the complex forensic questions surrounding matters involving human factors issues.

The combination of ergonomics and vocational rehabilitation experience, graduate degree training, and testimony experience allows you to rest assured that the human factors aspects of your case is based in real world experience, makes sense that is easily understood by a jury, and is based on facts and data.

When a forensic referral is received by Solutions Northwest, Inc., you can be certain that:

- The human factors theory of the case will be well supported by detailed research and documented facts
- Expert opinion will be based on facts and data
- You will know in advance, for certain, what testimony to expect
- We will apprise you of the human factors merits and weaknesses of the case
